CELEBRATING 30 YEARS OF AMHERST SOCCER HOUSE!

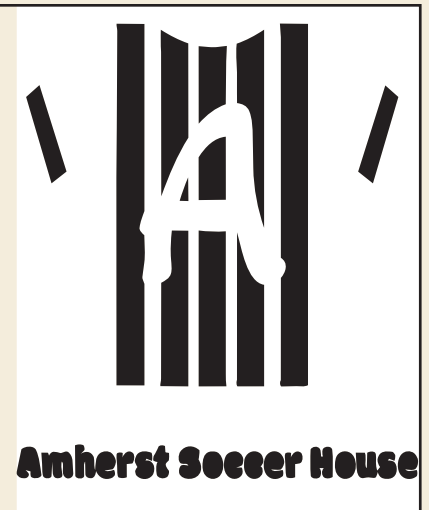

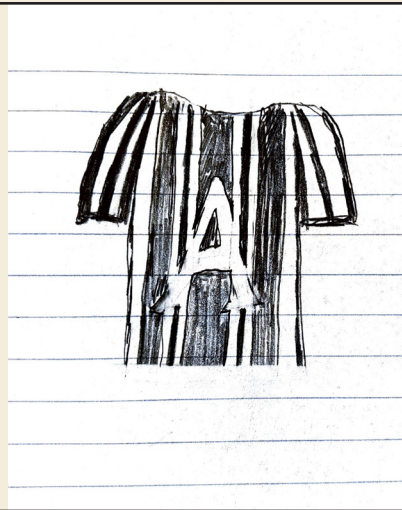

Amherst Soccer House

Part 1: Logo and Color design:

For my final portfolio, I decided to showcase my work in the form of a soccer magazine to connect with the common themes I used while learning adobe. During peer review, some may have noticed that I've been inspired by the world cup in previous projects which led me to form a guide informing others about the event using InDesign and a chance to improve my projects.

Part 1 (continued)

Each step on the right side describes my process of creating an effective logo, from hand drawn until creating it using Illustrator. This is a hypothetical store in which the magazine is advertising. I wanted to use negative space so the audience can fill in the gaps of a soccer jersey. To improve the design, I used red to represent passion and intensity on the center. I also added an updated version on the left to include a varsity

Part 2: Schematics:

When I originally created the timeline and map, I wanted to showcase where the host countries held the event and the history behind it. The subway map displays the cities where the tournament will take place and a colored subway line divide the continents into regions. To improve on this, I added more hypothetical bus routes connecting cities that were further away. It was challenging to use the pen tool to connect the lines at first, but it led to practice more and to group objects.

The timeline on the left shows the United State's experience with the world cup by adding in notable events where the team has succeeded and failed. The timeline is centered on the page and time increases as it goes down. To improve the design, I shortened the bullet points, made the artboard more centered, and added black space on the left and right side. The final question on the bottom has a larger font with italics.

Part 3: Explanatory Graphic:

For the A8 assignment, I created a simple yet colorful design showcasing Brazil's shirt. By using Illustrator, I used the arrows feature, an easy to read font, and the pen tool to highlight notable features of the jersey and explain the design.

Part 3:

For this project, I've noticed how Nike and Adidas are the major companies manufacturing this years national kits, I decided to create an alternative version with a rival team. Similar to the left, I used a pen tool and decreased the opacity to highlight the stars.
